SHEVAT / ADAR 5769

This year it's the...

Broadway Megillah!

Saturday, March 14: Evening performance

Sunday, March 15: Matinée

Mordechai: Esther, you cannot abandon your people. Just look into your heart, and you will realize that your fate lies with us.

Esther: My heart. . . Yes, yes, I feel it beating a definite hora rhythm. Possibly Hava Nagila. Why, I feel, I feel. . .

I feel Jewish,
Oh, so Jewish,
It's so true like a Jew's how I feel!
So Hebrew-ish,
Think I'll star in someone's Purim spiel!

RABBI'S REMARKS

Rabbi George Schlesinger

Gaza is ablaze and once again the world blames Israel for a lengthy list of “crimes” and “human rights violations.” Certainly the death and destruction that we witness every day is horrible and tragic. Without a doubt, more Palestinians have lost their lives than Israelis. Yet, the world seems unwilling to view this tragedy with any kind of historical perspective. Wars don’t generally start without some kind of grievance or provocation, and while it’s true that any one of us could probably point to many examples of “trumped up” grievances, this is not one such case.

In the period since September 11, 2001, when not one more terrorist act has been committed on American soil, Israel has sustained 29,000 terrorist acts: daily rocket fire from Gaza, suicide bombings, border infiltrations, shootings, kidnappings...and the list could go on and on. That’s an average of 10+ terrorist acts every single day for seven and a half years. One can only imagine how the United States would have chosen to respond if there were 29,000 terrorist acts committed against our country...on our soil. For that matter, how would/should any country respond to such constant threats? From this perspective, Israel has shown tremendous restraint.

It must also be remembered that Israel unilaterally evacuated Gaza in the summer of 2005. At great financial AND emotional expense, Israel uprooted thousands of its own citizens from Gaza and gave the Palestinians a chance to create a peaceful place for themselves. Israel gave them a chance to create the infrastructure of a nation: to create jobs and industry, governing agencies, and schools. Instead, violent conflict between Hamas and the Palestinian Authority broke out and in open street fighting, the more moderate PA was forced out of Gaza and the radical Hamas took over. Committed to the destruction of Israel and refusing to acknowledge Israel’s right to exist, a campaign of daily rocket fire was initiated, terrorizing the Israeli population of the south. In addition, Gilad Shalit was kidnapped on June 29, 2006 and remains in Hamas custody.

And now in the current conflict more Palestinians are dying than Israelis and the news media bombards us with images of dead and wounded Palestinian children without offering any commentary or perspective of why there might be such disparity of numbers. For example, as has happened since Israel’s war in Lebanon in the early 80s, the Palestinians have resorted to hiding and embedding weapons, munitions, and combatants in the midst of civilian populations: in schools, in mosques, in hospitals and in dwellings. Knowing Israel’s reluctance to harm civilians, Hamas relies upon Israeli restraint and when Israel relaxes some of that restraint there are horrible and unwanted casualties. News media from around the world then castigate Israel for “the carnage.”

One could easily ask, though, why the news media don’t show the pictures of the children in the Hamas training camps. Images of young children with AK-47s, hand grenades, rocket launchers and bomb vests are available to those who seek them, yet rather than show these kinds of images, the media chooses to show images of children in hospitals or of grieving parents at the funerals of their children.

Without a doubt, civilians are suffering in this crisis, but legitimate philosophical questions can be raised about innocence. When a population allows itself to be ruled by thugs and terrorists, even voting them into power...knowing full well the platform of hate and rejection upon which they stand...are they “innocent” when they reap what was sown? When one chooses to associate with thieves, when one aids and abets a criminal, is one “innocent” of any culpability when the police arrive simply because the crime was actually committed by someone else? Hamas has never hidden its intentions regarding Israel; they were voted into power by the residents of Gaza...the same residents who either aided the Hamas takeover of power or who passively watched from the sidelines. Now that the agenda of terror and death has come back to their front door, are they “innocent?” Not only did Gazans allow Hamas into their lives, they invited them in. It’s something to ponder.

In the meantime, our Masorti (Conservative) Movement in Israel is mobilizing to aid and comfort those who are on the “front lines.” Congregations in the north are hosting busloads of children and adults from the south (just as the southern congregations did two years ago during the Lebanon war) to bring welcome relief from the constant shelling and gunfire. Members of our youth movement (NOAM) are distributing warm hats to soldiers...both regulars and reservists. Services in the southern congregations continue on Shabbat as scheduled although mostly in “safe rooms” or air raid shelters. A mission of Conservative rabbis from the United States is visiting the congregations in the southern part of the country expressing solidarity with the people and with the country. The congregation in Ashkelon is working to reinforce the kindergarten area, to provide air conditioning for the shelters, to provide protective coverings for windows and to raise funds for a social worker to help with problems of traumatic stress among the children. Day trips out of the affected areas are scheduled to provide sightseeing and a good restaurant meal as a respite from the fighting.

All of this requires funding, and I’m asking all who are able to make a contribution to the Masorti Foundation, 475 Riverside Drive, Suite 832, NY, NY 10115. Checks should be marked Emergency Appeal. Online contributions can be made at www.masorti.org. Click on “Contributions” and then in Gift Allocation click Emergency Appeal.

God willing, by the time you read this, a just and lasting ceasefire will have been achieved and people on both sides of the border will be able to live in peace and tranquility and be able to fulfill the biblical promise: Each person shall sit under his fig tree and his vine and none shall make him afraid.

eScrip Report – THANKS TO OUR NEWEST SUPPORTERS: Ina Price, Jane Rogan & Phil Dwight, Fredrika & Brian Gross!

Purchases are down compared with the first nine months of 2008, which makes sense in our current economic situation. This means that the eScrip payment to CBA is lowered and affects our ability to pay the bills. We need 100% member participation during this time more than ever before. Please take a few minutes to join us in this painless fundraiser.

Here's how to sign up: 1) Go to www.eScrip.com and designate Congregation Beth Ami in Santa Rosa, ID#136921119 to receive contributions. 2) Register your Safeway club card, Macy's card and other credit or debit cards that you might use at participating merchants. 3) If you would rather not sign up online, there is a sign-up form in the office as well as on our website. Just fill it out and return it to the office and we will sign you up.

If you have misplaced your Safeway Club Card number, we can get it. All information will be kept confidential. Don't forget that if you are already signed up for eScrip with your school, you can split your contribution with Beth Ami. If you need help to sign up, contact Nancy Sherman at 538-9388 or enshermn@pacbell.net.

The 26th Annual Book Discussion Series 2008-2009

Vivian Salmon led our discussion of Tamar Yellin's, The Genizah at the House of Shepherd.

Our group gave the book mixed reviews, admiring the beautiful writing and descriptive passages, but criticizing the disjointed character of the novel in its entirety. The bottom line was that the format of the short story would probably suit this author better.

Our next discussion will take place on Wednesday, February 4 at 10 a.m. The topic will be The Centaur in the Garden. This discussion will be led by Alfred Batzdorff. New members are always welcome.

Any questions? Call Susanne Batzdorff at 538-9731.

Rosh Chodesh – Save the Dates!

The Women's Rosh Chodesh gatherings will be moving to seasonal celebrations, rather than meeting every month. Please mark your calendars with the following dates:

Sunday, April 26	12 p.m.
Thursday, August 20	7 p.m.
Wednesday, November 18	7 p.m.

We hope to continue our Beth Ami tradition of celebrating the new moon and reconnecting with each other. We invite girls and women of all ages to join us. Stay tuned for program information as each date approaches.

Tzedakah now, more than ever

Does it seem like I'm the Queen of Chutzpah bringing up the subject of giving when our economy is in such a crisis mode, when foreclosures come so close to home, when issues of trust cloud our investments? Please, don't shoot the messenger.

As Jews, we are obligated to give. Tzedakah comes from the Hebrew word for righteousness and justice. It is unjust and even illegal for Jews to not give charity to those in need. You might say that giving charity is obligatory self-taxation, not simply voluntary donation. The duty to give is so important in Judaism that even recipients of charity are obligated to give something.

According to Jewish tradition, the spiritual benefit of giving charity is so great that the giver benefits even more than the recipient. By giving charity, Jews recognize the good that God has given to them. Some scholars see charitable donation as a replacement for animal sacrifice in Jewish life in that it is a way to show thanks to and ask forgiveness from God. Contributing toward the welfare of others is a central and fulfilling part of one's Jewish identity.

As a Jewish community we have limited means and a great many financial causes which need our support. Understanding the need to help the individual prioritize how to allocate tzedakah funding, rabbinic scholars offered a strict set of legal and ethical guidelines for giving. These guidelines set a Jewish communal standard for how much to give, the most compassionate ways to give and to whom we are most obligated to support.

Please take some time to read the "Did you know?" box, then spend some time reevaluating how you are able to fulfill the commandment of tzedakah.

Did you know?

- ▶ Rabbinic scholars set a standard that at a minimum every individual is obligated to allocate 10% of their annual income for tzedakah. This sets a tone where all share in the communal responsibility of supporting those in need. At the same time, a cap of 20% of annual income was placed on the individual's giving so as not to create a culture where the wealthiest members of the community are expected to carry the community. Instead everyone has the opportunity to feel significantly invested in the process of philanthropic giving.
- ▶ The obligation to give tzedakah extends even to poor people themselves. This demonstrates that in the Jewish tradition giving is not simply about raising funds, but more so, the transformative act of linking principles to practice; an opportunity so important, no one should be denied it.
- ▶ Maimonides explains that because the Torah says you should give a person "whatever he needs" our obligations differ for each person. For a poor person, we may be obligated to provide him with the basic means to purchase food, clothing, and shelter. For a person who enjoyed a more comfortable lifestyle, we are obligated to give at a higher level so as not to make them feel ashamed. As the same time, we are not obligated to restore this person to his wealthy status.
- ▶ Even if the community chest or our individual resources are depleted, we are obligated give some small contribution to every person (not only Jews) who extends his hand asking for assistance.

During recent weeks I have been asked several times about travel to Israel in light of the Gaza war. I reply, "A trip to Israel now is a major show of support. It is safe. Do it!"

So, I decided to write about several people who have shown that support and gone to Israel as participants of the Birthright Program – that unique initiative, begun about eight years ago, which provides free 10-day Israel trips to young people –18 to 26 – who have no previous experience on peer trips. Here are three stories:

1st Story–Ashley Cleeves, a relatively new member of Beth Ami, is a graduate student at Sonoma State. We were delighted when she told us that she had been accepted for Birthright, leaving January 8. Ashley has been asked to write about her trip upon her return. But, she agreed to let me quote from an email she sent on January 11: "I am at my youth hostel in Tel Aviv. I am having so much fun. My favorites, so far had to be climbing Masada at sunrise, swimming at Ein Gedi Nature Reserve and the Dead Sea (ed: Ashley is a swim instructor). Tomorrow we head north to the Golan Heights and Sea of Galilee. I am so excited! I am glad I came to Israel. I feel the trip has already strengthened me religiously and has made me feel a closer, deeper connection to Israel and Judaism."

2nd Story–Dara Slavin, is a close family friend. She was one of 45 Birthright adventurers who were in Israel from December 29 –January 8. Here is part of her inspiring story: "...Israeli soldiers travel with the group the entire time as peers. What a wonderful perspective and harsh reality they brought. Most important, their love and pride for OUR country and OUR people. One of the hardest realities came to me the night our tour guide was called to duty. Our leader told us to meet in a common area at midnight and tearfully told us the news. Our wonderful, charismatic, loving tour guide, Tzuki, who is 32 and has a pregnant wife at home, was leaving any minute. The call was for tank combat training and then on to Gaza in the next few days. Ten minutes later, this brave man joined us, a big smile on his face, ready to answer any questions we had. He said all he wanted to do before he left was wish us an amazing rest of the trip and give his wife one last kiss before he leaves..."(she concludes with story about her Israeli cousins, also waiting for call up; and the sobering tears all around).

3rd Story–Our own Evey Abramowitz was a worrying grandmother for her two granddaughters, Jamie and Lori Abramowitz, who were on Birthright from the end of December until January 11. She reports that "they loved it—it was so perfect." More in a future memo.

SCUSY STUFF

Sharon Kruschen, SCUSY Youth Advisor

Our recent Fire & Ice event held at Snoopy's Home Ice Arena was a great success! We had 17 SCUSYers conclude their Shabbat with a Havdalah service led by our very own SCUSY board, fun ice breakers and of course ice skating. Thank you for those who came out on such a cold night! It was lots of fun, even though I fell on my tushie. Our next event is January 31. Please be on the look out for your LOX BOWL order forms. All our fundraisers help support our programing, scholarships and more! Have you joined our SCUSYNF Facebook group? Add us today!

Haley Pleasant on USY's International Convention

Over winter break, I attended USY's International Convention in Washington, D.C. and a post convention hosted by a USY chapter in Baltimore. Along with 30 other USYers from Northern California and Reno, I spent the week participating in programs centered around Israel, leadership, and other Jewish values. The trip, along with giving me the chance to reunite with friends from IC 2007 and meeting many new ones, was also an incredible opportunity to learn valuable leadership skills that will benefit SCUSY and to learn about current events in Israel while living in a Jewish environment for a week. Throughout the week, we visited the D.C. Zoo, the Smithsonians, the Baltimore Science Center, Baltimore Aquarium, and went on a tour of the national monuments. Some of the programs and activities consisted of leadership workshops, creative tefillot, a concert by the Humble Kings, a Ben Yehudah street fair, and much more. We were also spoken to by Ms. Mazi Melesa, a representative from the North American Conference on Ethiopian Jewry, and Eric Lynn, a former USYer and the Middle East Policy Advisor and National Jewish Community Liaison for Obama for America. And, of course, the week was also filled with prayer three times a day and kosher meals. After a week of social action programs, friends, and ruach in the nation's capital, it was hard to leave. But I and the other USYers from the New Frontier region will reunite with our new friends next year at IC 2009 in Chicago!

Jacob Kreger on the Diller Teen Fellowship

My name is Jacob Kreger. Leah Pickar and I have been accepted to the Diller Teen Fellowship program. This Jewish teen leadership program began January 11 with our first meeting at the Bureau of Jewish Education in San Francisco.

In addition to meeting the other 18 teens in the program we learned the role of pluralism in Judaism. Leah, our new friend Nadiv, and I will be responsible for planning our Shabbat services for our upcoming retreat in February at the Marin Headlands. I am excited to have this opportunity to be part of the adventure.

- ▶ After assuring for one's own livelihood, one is first obligated to support his immediate family, then his extended family, neighbors, local community, and so on.
- ▶ The Torah states, "for the sake of paths of shalom, peace" we are obligated to give tzedakah to all people in need, not only Jewish people. Some scholars explain this to mean that when striving for shalom, a true peace, we must extend our obligation beyond the Jewish community and to the entire world.

20 SHEVAT 5769

Hi, my name is Rachel Simkovitz. I have been coming to Congregation Beth Ami for as long as I can remember. I will be a Bat Mitzvah on February 14, 2009. I am in the 7th grade at Rincon Valley Charter School. I love music, art, animals and synchronized swimming. I am a big reader and lately a HUGE fan of the "Twilight" saga. I spend most of my time with my friends. I love to spend my time at Beth Ami and hope to become a madracha next year. I hope you will join my family and me in celebrating my Bat Mitzvah!

CHAVERIM

Rick Concoff, Program Director

Wow, what a great month this has been for Chaverim.

Our dinner discussions continue with 100 students participating twice a month for dinner and conversation on a Jewish topic. We are graced with 90% attendance by the teens at these meetings. We have recently been looking into the history of the Israel-Palestinian conflict and the presentations have been real eye-openers for the students.

Socially the 8th grade enjoyed a fun-filled afternoon at Chop's teen center in Santa Rosa which offered an event of fun, visiting, enjoyment and games. The event was well attended and Chop's continues to be a great venue for our teens. If you have never seen it, look it up and stop by. It is an amazing asset to our teen community and a great gift as well.

The high school students had one of their most successful events, as 46 students walked into a mock casino in the hall at Shomrei Torah and were they pleasantly surprised. The kids were treated to a Monte Carlo night presented by none less than 10 of our Committee and parent community. The room was decorated to a tee and the event was enjoyed by all. Of course, we began with a lovey Havdallah service in the dark of Shomrei Torah's beautiful synagogue and proceeded to enjoy the activity. The kids enjoyed the recreation of the evening and left with prizes and gifts! Thanks so much to the Chaverim Committee Monte Carlo subcommittee, ably led by Barbara Rosenthal for their support on this event.

We are looking forward to more social events, dinner discussions, a ski snow trip, a Shabbaton, an 8th grade campout, ice skating and much more!

It is also important to mention that 12 of our Chaverim students have been participating in a wonderful project with the Jewish Family and Children's Services in learning ways to support and assess needs of their fellow teens. This effort has been a collaborative one between Chaverim and the JFCS and we hope for many more in the future. Thanks to Diana Klein and Mary Hirsch for their able leadership on behalf of the JFCS and the students.

The Stories of Our Matriarchs

Woman of Valor
More precious than rubies
Passing her knowledge from generation to generation
~Proverbs 31

Each issue of the Shofar will feature several biographies of the Matriarchs who were honored at the Rosh Chodesh Chai Tea held on November 23, 2008. The biographies, written by Rosh Chodesh members and Religious School students, were originally printed in the event program. Paula Schlesinger wrote the introduction to each honoree.

Elsie Rich
Elsie has always tried to do what is asked of her and to treat people respectfully. She believes that when you live this way, it is like an echo and the goodness you share comes back to you.

We light a candle in honor of the strength, stamina, and mental acuity of Elsie Rich.

Elsie was born on August 6, 1901 in Vienna, Austria. She had three brothers and one sister. She lived in a small Jewish community but did not have a Jewish education. Life was less hectic than it is today. Her father moved to London for business and died young of pneumonia. Two of her brothers were drafted. They were surrounded by enemies and there wasn't much food. They got food from the black market. She and her sister supported each other through these hard times.

Elsie liked to work and was always happy. She believes getting along with people makes life easier. She has learned that keeping busy and finding time for fun is a good way to live. When life seems difficult, Elsie suggests that you are not alone, ask for help, and believe in G-d. Don't let something that bothers you eat at you. She has always tried to do what is asked of her and to treat people respectfully. When you live this way, it is like an echo and the goodness you share comes back to you.

Elsie came to the United States in 1938. At first she lived in New York. It was too cold, so four years later she drove to the West Coast because she had a friend here and she "never looked back." She was here when Beth Ami started. Elsie likes to come to services and make donations to the synagogue. A very memorable time in her life was when the Mayor of Santa Rosa invited her to the City Hall to celebrate her 106th birthday. She has made good friends and feels that Beth Ami is her family.

Sylvia Sucher
Sylvia's belief in the strength and worth of every individual and our responsibility to take action to make our own lives and those of others better is an inspiration to our community.

We light a candle in honor of the intellectual prowess of Sylvia Sucher.

Sylvia Sucher was born July 1912 in Brooklyn and grew up there with her parents, brother and sister. She describes her childhood as very different from today because there was no TV and no radio until she was 10 years old. Her family did not have a car or electricity in the house until she was seven or eight. When Sylvia was four, she was hospitalized with polio. Her mother helped her learn to be very determined and not give up overcoming the problems with polio. She encouraged her to try her hardest and to believe that she could do whatever she set her mind to do.

During WW II, everybody was involved in some way to help the war effort. Everybody wanted us to win the war. There was food rationing, which meant that you had ration stamps for meat, sugar and other scarce materials.

Many women went to work in factories taking the place of the men who were drafted into the war. Sylvia's husband worked for the Navy. He was a physicist and worked at installing anti-magnetic mine machinery to save the ships from being torpedoed by the Nazis as they crossed the ocean. Later on they began to hear about the Holocaust that was taking place. Those were terrible times.

Sylvia's belief in the importance of being positive helped her to overcome hard times. She also appreciates the importance of having friends who care about you, to share your happiness and who want to help and support you. She feels that Beth Ami has given her a "family of friends" that have enriched her life.

Sylvia came to Beth Ami 26 years ago and was instrumental in the founding of Friendship Circle, the Book Discussion Series and the Holocaust Studies Program at Sonoma State University. She is an avid reader, enjoys reading the New York Times, the New Yorker magazine and books, of course.

Sylvia believes in the strength and worth of every individual and our responsibility is to take action to make our own lives and those of others better.

Tikkun Olam – Repairing the World

Global warming, water, fuel use, and electricity are all interwoven.

◆ Now in our third drought year, mandatory water rationing seems likely. Since July, our rainfall's been 50% of normal. Water garden and houseplants by capturing water when you turn on the hot water tap. Plan ahead for a dry summer—view the Sonoma County Water Agency's water-saving CD at www.sonoma.watersavingplants.com/.

◆ Although gas prices have dropped dramatically, they're going back up. Last year Americans drove 100 billion fewer miles than the year before—using 3.2% less gas. Now we need to keep conserving to save fossil fuel and reduce global warming.

◆ Send clever “appliance-grams,” with tips on saving natural gas, to family and friends at www.wintergassavings.com/.

◆ PGE buys power from non-renewable sources when there's not enough water for hydroelectric generation. Unplugging electronics and chargers that aren't in use saves electricity, burning less fossil fuel. If every Californian did this, it would be like taking 120,000 cars off the road. Go to www.pge.com/myhome/saveenergymoney for other energy-saving ideas,

Join with other people clicking daily to make a real difference in less than a minute. Last year clicking—and shopping—provided 72 million cups of food for the hungry, nearly 7600 mammograms, health care for close to 1,000,000 children worldwide, over 500,000 books for children, nearly 78 million bowls of food for animals, and preserved almost 15,000 acres of land.

LITERARY LINES

Gabor Por, Librarian

Our catalog and blog are online at www.bethamisr.org/library

One of my favorite holidays is Tu B'Shevat, and this year it falls on February 9. I like it because it inspires me out of my sedentary lifestyle and into nature, to enjoy and appreciate a taste of spring. On this day I surely have my recommended amount of daily fruit.

However, I also have an ambivalent relationship with this holiday. It is about celebrating trees and as a librarian I surround myself with fallen trees, in the form of books. I feel guilty because a large number of trees had to be cut down to create the books that fill our library. I console myself in two ways.

First, I hope that more trees are planted than the ones that were cut down. Israel is a leading force in this regard, their tree-planting programs were essential in turning the desert into a living and livable place. I also enjoy planting trees myself, but I admit not doing it as often as I wish or should!

Second, as there is nothing I can do for the trees that were already turned into the books in the library I want to make sure that their sacrifices were not in vain, but to try to interest you in reading these books. The more books you, dear readers, borrow and read the less guilty I have to feel. In this spirit let me recommend the four very different items we have on Tu B'Shevat itself.

Our 30-page picture book for toddlers and older, titled Tu Bi-Sh'vot: The New Year's Day for Trees, follows two children throughout their day of celebration at home with their family and in school with their classmates. We also offer two different Seders for the holiday to help you celebrate it. One of them—written by Appelman and Shapiro—is full of joyful illustrations and is geared for 8-11 year olds. The other, by Adam Fisher, is richer in content suitable for all ages. It contains more songs, blessings, stories, and poems for your pleasure.

Finally, if you really want to be engaged with Tu B'Shevat check out our thick (500 page long) anthology titled Trees, Earth, and Torah. Its three editors, Ari Elon, Naomi Mara Hyman and Arthur Waskow, did a superb job of selecting essays covering the holiday from every imaginable angle, including its growth in history, its roots in biblical and rabbinic Judaism, its connection to Kabbalah, Hasidism, Zionism and Israel and its development into eco-Judaism. The last third of the book has everything you would ever want to know on how to celebrate it and why.

Let me end now with the opening words of the introduction to Trees, Earth and Torah.

“I hope more than any other Jewish festival, Tu B'Shvat is the celebration of Becoming. There is no halakha, no legal structure, to define it. It springs wholly from the spiritual depth and growth of the Jewish people in relation with the One Who always beckons us to grow and in relation with the earth where all things grow.”

Generous Contributions to our Congregation

The next time you are looking for a meaningful way to celebrate a joyous occasion, remember a loved one, or comfort a mourner, please consider a donation to Congregation Beth Ami.

When you make a gift, a card is sent to the honoree or the family and your donation is proudly acknowledged in the Shofar.

The minimum donation for each occasion is $7.50. Congregation Beth Ami truly appreciates your support.

It is a Tree of Life to those who hold fast to it, and whoever holds onto it is happy.

Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all its paths are peace.

~Proverbs 3:18, 3:17,

from the liturgy for returning the Torah to the Holy Ark.
